Milky Way Farms to be Featured on Sportsline Hope Hines to Host Ausburn, Tucker on NewsChannel5+ Show Wednesday

Giles County, Tenn., April 10, 2007 — Historic Milky Way Farms in Giles County, Tenn., will be featured Wednesday on the cable channel NewsChannel5+ show Sportsline.

Scheduled to air live at 8 p.m., the show hosted by Hope Hines will include South Carolina Developer Charles Ausburn and Nashville golf course designer Kevin Tucker as well as a taped interview with PGA Tour veteran Jay Haas.

Ausburn, who bought Milky Way Farms last fall, has recently announced his intentions to develop the property into a gated residential community. The development has at the center of its purpose the restoration and preservation of the farm created by Candy Bar King Frank Mars in 1930.

One of the key components of the development is the Jay Haas Galaxy Club, the 18-hole golf course bearing the name of the man who brings history, integrity and character to his role as consulting designer.

Haas will work with Tucker, who is involved in the design of the Jay Haas Galaxy Club course as well as the entire Milky Way Farms development.

Tucker, who grew up in Cookeville, has designed more than 100 golf courses, mostly in the Southeastern United States, and has worked with famous golf names such as Hal Sutton, Tommy Bolt, Bobby Gallagher Jr., Ed Sneed, Bobby Greenwood, Bobby Nichols, Tom Fazio, Von Hagge-Devlin and Charles Mahana.

Sportsline is an exclusive program airing on NewsChannel5+ Monday-Wednesday 8 p.m.-9 p.m. It highlights high school, college and professional sports in Nashville and Middle Tennessee. Viewers can call into the show at 615-737-7767.

Hines, sports director for WTVF NewsChannel5 in Nashville, visited Milky Way Farms Friday, April 6, where the development, plans for the Jay Haas Galaxy Club and the Milky Way Equestrian Club were announced.

Clips of his interview with Haas are expected to be part of Wednesday night's show.

Located in southern Middle Tennessee, Milky Way Farms is situated just a few miles west of Interstate 65, approximately one hour from Nashville and 45 minutes from Huntsville, Ala.
